OTHER DANCE STORIES

"At YPW, our daughters developed excellent "on-stage" skills in acting, singing, and dance. By performing repeatedly for live audiences, they gained experience and confidence that positions them well for the future, not just on stage but in any sort of public setting." - William Tronoski (2023)

THE COMPANY

The Centenary Young Performers Workshop (YPW) is a musical theatre program under the auspices of the Centenary Stage Company, a not-for-profit Equity Theatre Company in residence at Centenary University located in Hackettstown, NJ. The Centenary YPW is dedicated to the enrichment of young lives through the use of theatre art and serves as a greenhouse for cultivating young theatre performers, ages 8–18. The program is one of the few that offers both formal training and production experience for young people. Career-minded individuals can prepare for the rigors of a professional career, yet students not aiming for a professional career benefit from the program with its emphasis on discipline, self-worth and development of communication skills.

FALL & SPRING SESSIONS

This 15-week intensive musical theatre program has been designed to meet the needs of beginning, intermediate & advanced performers interested in working in theatre. The hands-on program will utilize both the classroom and the “production process” to train young people in the theatre arts. The program culminates in a live presentation of select productions, in the Sitnik Theatre. The production(s) will be selected by program director and based on enrollment. The program is under the direction of Broadway and television veteran, Michael Blevins.

Once registered, students are guaranteed a part in the production(s). There are a minimum of two productions planned for the fall and spring sessions. All YPW students enrolled in the fall/winter session will have the opportunity to be chosen and cast in the CSC mainstage holiday production. This winter's CSC holiday show will be A Christmas Carol. Casting in the Mainstage CSC production is not guaranteed and not all students will be cast.

No experience is necessary; however, applicants must completed an interview/audition with the program director for acceptance. The first meeting of the fall session will be held on Saturday, September 13, 2025
TIME TBA.
